

CURRENCY HAS THE FLOOR YET

Aldrich Bill Is Not Entirely Satisfactory To The Bankers In General.

THREE IDEAS PRESENTED ALREADY

Rhode Island Senator's Bill, However, Has The Preference, Owing To Prominence Of Its Framer
And His Official Position.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—Currency continues to be the subject to which the leaders in both houses of congress are devoting chief attention. While the confusion caused by the multitude of suggestions at the beginning of the session has been cleared away to a great extent, it has not yet been possible to satisfy all the most influential in shaping currency legislation in congress or all the financial interests outside with any single measure that has been brought forward thus far.

It has been assumed in many quarters that Senator Aldrich's bill would be the one to be passed. While the presumption is naturally in favor of this measure on account of Mr. Aldrich's influence as chairman of the senate committee on finance, great deal of opposition to his bill has developed, both on the part of members of the house committee on banking and currency and among prominent bankers in the east and west alike. Former Comptroller of the Currency A. Barton Hepburn, president of the Chase National bank of New York, who is generally recognized as a spokesman of the conservative banking interests of the country, has protested publicly and vigorously against any provision for bond secured currency.

Many financial experts, especially those who have studied the currency systems of France, England and Germany, are in favor of a central bank. There seems to be a general feeling, however, that a prejudice exists against such a measure, although little evidence of any such feeling has been displayed here. The fear of creating this prejudice makes many congressmen shy of endorsing any proposal for a central bank of issue.

A third suggestion is put forward by Alexander Gilbert, president of the New York Clearing House association, which was instrumental in preventing the October panic from reaching disastrous proportions. His plan, which is proposed briefly in the course of an article in a February magazine, is the provision of an emergency currency by simply developing and recognizing officially the clearing house certificate plan used with such good effect in the recent trouble.

He points out that the amount of such certificates issued in New York was $27,000,000, or less than 10 per cent of the total deposits. This amount is less proportionately than was issued during 1893. A large part of these certificates have been canceled already and all are likely to be retired within a short time. This amount was in excess of actual requirements, as the full amount issued was not in use even at the height of the panic and retirements began almost as soon as the issue was made.

"A careful computation," says Mr. Gilbert, "shows that $74,000,000 would have sufficed to do the required work. With this amount of certificates, restricted in their use to clearing house purposes, exchanges to the amount of $2,300,000,000 daily have been settled quickly and effectively. Here we have the best object lesson of an emergency currency that is as absolutely secure as anything human can be, that can be quickly issued and quickly retired, that will never be issued until it is imperatively required, that can never result in inflation, and that will always be under the control of the most experienced bankers. Furthermore, it may be added that this is a system which is purely American."

"All that is needed to adapt such a system to our requirements is development, and I feel confident that if the subject could be referred to the clearing house committees of the three central reserve cities, an emergency currency plan could be evolved that would be in harmony with our national banking system and be less subject to criticism and opposition than any other system which has yet been proposed."

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
La Crosse, Wis., Jan. 22.—That La Crosse will have to make a determined effort to keep the Third Regimental band in this city is evident from the number of cities which are making active campaigns to secure it. The businessmen of Sparta are willing to lend efficient support to assure a good director and hope to secure the appointment. Grand Rapids and Winona are also after the honor. Says He Came to Him with Complaints of White in 1904 and Wrote Him Frequently.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, Jan. 22.—Anthony Comstock, vice president of the society for the suppression of vice, was the principal witness at the trial of Harry K. Thaw today. He testified that in 1904 Thaw came to him and complained of the vicious practices by Stanford White and several of his friends. During the year that followed Thaw wrote him several times and was a frequent visitor at vice society headquarters. The letters gave the names of alleged victims of White at his 21st street studio house. They referred to White as a "blackguard." The house, Thaw declared, was consigned to angles controlled by six or seven criminal conductors. The letters were new evidence in the case, but were mentioned at the last trial when Dr. Evans was telling what Thaw had said to him of his efforts to have White sent to the penitentiary.

Sale of the Woolen Factory at Monticeny and Contemplated Improvements.—We understand that Mr. Whitcomb has sold his large woolen factory at Monticeny, in the Fourth ward, to Messrs. Loveland and Hestings for $21,000. These gentlemen are among our most enterprising and wealthy citizens, and with a large capital, three sets of machinery, and stock on hand to last for six months, they commence operations. This under very favorable auspices. This factory is now the largest in the state, and with the additions and improvements contemplated, will make it the most extensive in the Northwest.

We also learn that Messrs. Orent and Clark have purchased of Mr. Hestings the flouring mill at Monticeny, and that persons are negotiating for power upon which to erect a paper mill.
It is more than probable that the valuable water-power at Monticeny will soon be wholly occupied, as it presents the best inducement for the investments of manufacturing capital, that can be found in this region.

Washington, D. C.—In the Supreme Court today, Chief Justice Chase announced that the court after considering the motion made by Judge Black to advance the McCardle case upon the docket, had decided to hear the case on the first Monday in March. This decision gives satisfaction to individuals as they hope by that time to have affairs in such condition, in the States of Mississippi and Alabama that even if the court decides the reconstruction acts unconstitutional, it will not seriously impede the work in those States.

The House passed the Reconstruction bill this afternoon without amendment, by a vote of 123 yeas to 23 nays.

EAST PORTER.

East Porter, Jan. 21.—This is pronounced by many to be so far the finest winter known in Southern Wisconsin.

We hear many of late speak of the reliability of the Janesville Gazette stock market report which to the farmers who are readers of the Daily Gazette is worth a great deal.

The report that $1.75 was paid for cattle last week by the Edgerton buyers was a mistake. It should have been $1.25.

Mr. Ed. Johnson made a business trip to Jefferson one day last week. Miss Page and her niece of Stoughton attended church in Fulton last Sunday.

The Edgerton Telephone company inspected line 318 last Tuesday.

Mrs. Wylio who has been at her son's, Mr. John Thompson, returned home last Saturday.

Quite a number of the friends of Miss Ida Murwin gave her a genuine surprise last Monday night and reminded her that her twentieth birthday was an occasion which should not go by unnoted. The evening was spent in games and good cheer. A very tempting supper was served which was heartily enjoyed by all. Most happy returns was the unanimous wish.

Evidently the spirit of the chase is no less ardent in some people now than formerly. This fact was proven last week when, after seeing a fox cross the yard of Frank Sayre, Jr., early in the morning, he, in company with his brother James, Byron Wallin, Ront, Beach and Elmer O. Berg, started in pursuit before they had even had their breakfast, travelling through rough fields, timber and hay roads and returning about 4 p. m. after having captured their booty northeast of Stoughton and having travelled as they estimated, about twenty-five miles. It was afterwards ascertained that the fox was first seen to Claude Stout who was the first to see it and is now in the hands of Irving Gardner who is making a fine cup of it.

Some of the farmers are getting anxious for tobacco weather. As yet there has been very little removed from the poles.

Mr. George Dushoff has been purchasing Janesville property and has certainly made a good investment. We are glad to learn that Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Murray were able to take their little daughter, Helen, home Sunday after undergoing a successful operation by Drs. Peimor and Nugent of Janesville.

The friends of Mr. T. Richmond will be pained to know that his condition is considered serious.

The hunters seem to enjoy themselves nowadays. Parties from Brodhead, Monroe, and Beloit have been through this locality.

MANY INFLUENTIAL PEOPLE ADOPT NEW THEORY

Statements from Followers of Cooper Obtained Recently in Various Cities.

A number of statements from prominent people located in various cities where the widespread discussion over J. T. Cooper's new theory regarding the human stomach has recently been given an idea of the intense interest the young man has aroused during the past year. The statements are as follows:

Mr. C. D. Mitchell, of 2412 Avenue C, Birmingham, Ala., has this to say with regard to his belief in Cooper's medicine: "I have been troubled with indigestion and stomach trouble for the past year. I had heartburn, bloating after eating, gas on stomach and bowels, palpitation of the heart, pain in the lower part of my back, and various other symptoms, and was a victim of much distress. I tried many remedies, but received little or no benefit from them. I was advised to try the Cooper preparations, and did so. In one week's time I was improved wonderfully—the first relief I had been able to obtain. Mr. Cooper's medicine does all he claims for it."

Mr. J. O. Spradling, of 505 South Tejon Street, Colorado Springs, Colo., says: "I was troubled with indigestion for two years. It caused me a great deal of suffering and misery. I did not dare to eat meat at all, and everything I did eat soured on my stomach. I tried various remedies, but found no relief. Three months ago I started taking Cooper's New Discovery, and after using the contents of three bottles I was entirely cured. I can now eat and relish anything that my appetite craves. The New Discovery is truly a great stomach medicine."

Mr. Wm. Codner, of 408 Graves Street, Syracuse, N. Y., is very strong in his expression of belief in the new medicine, and has the following to say on the subject: "I have suffered from catarrh of the nose and throat for four years. It must have been communicated to my stomach, for all this time my stomach has given me a great deal of trouble, and caused me much pain and suffering. My stomach was often sour, and my food did not digest. I was bothered by a continual desire to spit, and there was a constant dropping of mucus into the throat."

"The first relief I have been able to obtain is from Cooper's New Discovery, which I have been taking for about a week. My catarrhal condition has been greatly improved and my stomach is almost well. Mr. Cooper's medicine has benefited me more than anything I have ever used."

These statements are from reliable citizens in various communities who have tried these celebrated medicines. We sell them and will gladly explain their nature to any one interested.

BUILDING CARVED OUT OF SOLID ROCK.

Pharaoh's treasury in the rock city of Petra is a wonderful construction. It is literally carved out of the solid rock. Not only that, but this building stands on a high, steep, and almost inaccessible mountain. It is 300 feet in diameter and 150 feet from floor to top of cutting.

About the time of Christ this city was a great commercial center. It is often termed the "safest deposit" because if the trader could once reach there they felt safe from robbery. At the sixth century A. D., no trace of Petra appears until 1812. When Burckhardt discovered it. The ruins are in excellent condition and the famous ancient Pharaoh's Treasury of Petra is today a fascinating place.

January 22, 1907.—One year ago today Senator Bailey of Texas was re-elected by the legislature.

News From The Suburbs

CLINTON. Jan. 21.—Mrs. A. Bird was a brief visitor here one day last week.

Mr. E. S. Smith accompanied Miss Grace Hurdin back to Chicago on Sunday morning, where she will spend a few days with friends and relatives.

A. E. Dunley was in Racine over Sunday where he delivered several addresses to various companies.

M. A. Mayhew has returned from his trip to the Dakotas. Mrs. Mayhew is spending a little time in the East.

Word was received Friday announcing the death of Mr. Thekens, brother of Mrs. W. F. Christian.

Miss Maud Crowther's many Clinton friends will be surprised to learn that she was married in Chicago a week or more ago.

The Clinton Novelty works had concluded to close down for a few weeks until surplus stock is disposed of and collections are more nearly caught up.

The Greenbury Supply Co., for the present, is to run but three days a week, owing largely to collections being slow.

Nona could ever ask for, nor expect to see fine winter weather than that of the past few days.

The officers of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the M. E. church for the Janesville district are to meet with Mrs. Cheever on Saturday afternoon, Evansville, Janesville, Beloit, Clinton, Delavan and Elkhorn are to be represented.

Last Friday evening the Clinton fire company gave its annual concert and ball. Knoff & Hatch furnished the music, which was very satisfactory.

The receipts for the dance were very good, the receipts being some $150.

J. G. Barker was able to walk out and about town a little during the past pleasant weather.

It is to be hoped, now that the country is to have charge of the Lake Shore and a road each way across the township, that Clinton will soon have highways to be proud of.

A. J. Wilkins' people write from Brooklyn that they are usually well and that people are not playing croquet, and that it has frozen but two days since they have been there.

A wedding is on the bills for Wednesday of this week.

With a howling and billiard room running overtime, another pool and billiard room doing a good business and the roller skating rink running right along, there seems to be no lack for amusement in Clinton.

The pastor of the German church has accepted a call from a church at Merrill to which place he will soon go. While here he has made many friends who will wish for him great prosperity in his new field.

Our farmers are largely doing away with windmills, using small gasoline engines instead, finding them to be more satisfactory and reliable; and then they can use them for so many other purposes aside from pumping that they are great labor savers on the farm, it being easy to rig them for wood sawing, shredding, etc.

Mrs. Grace Eldridge and Mrs. Mayme Rogers started in the week by going to Chicago Monday morning.

Mrs. Kate Simons and youngest son were in town Friday, returning from Harvard on Saturday.

As soon as it can be gotten at Geo. Huber is to have an addition built to his house and a re-arrangement of the rooms made.

Of Course They Said So.

"How did you happen to come to me for your dentistry?" said Dr. Richards to a patient recently.

"Why, you see I'm a stranger here," said the party, "and I inquired of several people as to what dentist to go to, and they all said to Dr. Richards."

"Of course, I didn't want to be hurt and so I came up to you," said the patient.

"Well, are you sorry you came?"

"Not a bit. You never hurt me in the least."

It's worth something to have such a reputation for Palmless Dentistry. If you need dentistry and wish perfect satisfaction try Dr. Richards. He "delivers the goods."

Married Today: Miss Nellie Cassiday and Arthur Baumann were married this afternoon at four o'clock at the parsonage of St. Patrick's church by the Rev. Dean McGinnity.

The ceremony was followed by a tempting wedding supper served at the home of the bride at 157 S. Academy street. The happy couple will go to Chicago tonight for a short trip. They will make their future home in a flat on the corner of Main and South Second streets.

PROFESSOR BOWEN'S STUDY OF HEAVENS

Professor Bowen Student of Stars—Their Action on the Earth and People Talk.

Professor Bowen, the student of the heavens, has the following to say relative to the heavens for the present month. He also explains why the present mal dog epidemic is prevalent. His says:

Venus is 1 hour high in southwest. Jupiter same in the direct East. Mars in position of 2 p. m. summer sun.

Saturn forty minutes to southwest of Mars.

A line drawn from the North Star, through the Demon Star "Alnil", to a point directly overhead (will touch the top of the head of the Grand Zodiac Man) and extended on south will strike the west arm of the square and compass, the eleven star Masonic emblem.

At 8:15 a line drawn from North Star, overhead to south will pass through Capella, a very bright star north of overhead. This line extended to south passes near Aldebaran the right eye of the latter. A just a little south of overhead, the neck of the Zodiac man, the Pleiades, the seven small stars forming a little dipper; and the box shaped object the headless Orion far to the south. The brightest star in the southeast at 8 p. m. is of interest to this vicinity.

The Dog's star, sandwiched in as he is at present between Uranus causing cancer of the stomach, Mars impressing the Scorpion instinct, Jupiter inducing to run at large and Saturn producing chronic indigestion it seems a wonder that dogs are as good as they are. Far to the northeast three foot, front legs and curve of throat and nose of the Big Bear may be clearly perceived. L. O.

More Insurance.

Since the statement of the insurance companies was published in last Saturday's papers totalling over two hundred thousand dollars on building and contents, some thirty-five thousand dollars worth more of insurance has been discovered bringing the total up to two hundred and forty thousand dollars. Thus far the insurance adjusters have not held any meetings with the owners. Mr. Marquisee still being in New York and Edward Hasline the local representative having gone there on Sunday night for a consultation. William Saxby the superintendent stated that several adjusters had visited the ruins but that they awaited Mr. Hasline's return.

Still Smoking.

Though thousands of gallons of water have been poured on the ruins the tobacco is still smouldering and yesterday broke into an incipient blaze which was quickly extinguished. Just how much damage there will be is very doubtful. The tobacco is so thoroughly soaked and water soaked that it is practically useless and it is doubtful if anything can be realized. The cellar is still full of the cases which could be easily hauled in this kind of weather but which would be frozen into a solid block of ice if a hard freeze should come.

A. L. FISHER Suing

THE ST. PAUL ROAD

Judge Stevens of the Dane County Court is Hearing the Case.

The damage suit of Abel L. Fisher of Janesville against the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road is being tried before a jury in the Dane county circuit court, and promises to occupy the balance of the week. Fisher was injured by being thrown to the floor of a boxcar in the Stoughton yards of the company while loading tobacco. He claims the road is responsible for a switch-engine backing up against the car. He alleges he is permanently injured. Arthur M. Fisher is his attorney.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Miss Margaret Jackson has been visiting in Chicago this week.

Miss Winifred Elford goes to Chicago this week for a visit with friends there.

Mrs. Clarence Davis of St. Paul has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Carpenter. She leaves today for her home.

J. P. Hammerlund and T. J. Smith attended the electrical show in Chicago Tuesday.

Arthur P. Aller was a guest at the home of Mrs. Aller's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Barker yesterday. Mr. Aller is steward at the Northern Hospital, Oshkosh.

Mr. Harry Jackson of Chicago is visiting friends in the city. Mr. Jackson will be remembered as the engineer in charge of the interurban construction work in 1902, whose sensational infiltration into the Jackson Club at that time was long the talk of the city.

COUNCIL TO DECIDE AS TO THE CANINES

Question of Dogs and Dog License May Solve the Mad-Dog Problem in Janesville.

Tomorrow evening the council at a special session will discuss the mad-dog situation and the advisability of passing a stringent dog license law. It is probable that such a law will be passed. Meanwhile the police are doing what they can to eradicate any possibility of a spread of the rabies among the canines of the city. Every suspected animal is closely watched and many have been killed by the police. A dog that was bitten by the colic that attacked Frank Knight is being watched for and will be taken care of as soon as found. Chief Appleby this morning put two suspects out of misery and officers stand ready at all times to aid in suppressing the disease by radical methods. Under the state law, however, a dog is property and cannot be killed or maimed by officers unless given special powers by the council to do so.

Will Play at Clinton: The Janesville Symphony Orchestra will play at Clinton Friday night under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. Miss Florence Spooner, reader, will assist in the program.

Such steps are customary in cases where fires in which a large loss is sustained and the origin of which is not clear occur and does not necessarily mean that incendiarism is suspected but that the investigation may lead to discovering the cause and thus warning others how to prevent similar disasters.

HE WILL NOT SEEK VOTES

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 22.—Gov. Hughes Tuesday night publicly declared his attitude toward the movement in favor of his nomination for the presidency in a letter to James S. Lehman of New York, acknowledging notification of the resolution of the Republican club, and appointing the evening of Friday of next week for a meeting with the club at which, he intimates, he will still more definitely declare himself.

"I am deeply sensible of the honor conferred upon me," says the governor, "by my fellow members of the Republican club in the passage of the resolution to which you refer, and it will give me pleasure to accept the invitation. In accepting it, it is proper for me to restate my position.

House Adds Important Amendment to Penal Code Bill—Exciting
Features of the Day.

Washington, Jan. 22.—At the close of a day of excitement in the house of representatives, an amendment was added to the penal code bill, making it a criminal offense for any officer or employee of the government to give out advance information regarding any crop statistics authorized by law to be prepared.

The necessity for its adoption was conceded by nearly every member who addressed the house, and its safe running of the gauntlet was greeted with applause.

Earlier in the day interest attached to a tilt between Mr. Daboll of Pennsylvania and Mr. Randall of Texas, over the latter's amendments prohibiting senators or members from being employed by public service corporations. Believing that Mr. Randall had intimated that he represented such corporations at this time, Mr. Daboll grew indignant and declared that he had not been employed in such capacity for 20 years.

The climax of the debate came when Mr. Clark of Missouri announced, amid thunderous Democratic applause, that William J. Bryan would be nominated at the Denver convention, while Mr. Daboll of Illinois aroused the members on his side of the house to a high pitch of enthusiasm by stating that Speaker Cannon would be the Republican nominee at Chicago in June.

NEW YORK PLAN FAVORED.

Michigan May Have a Public Service Commission.

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 22.—A plan for a public service commission to regulate transportation, telegraph and telephone lines, as well as concerns furnishing heat, light, water or power to the public, either directly or indirectly, was favorably reported Tuesday to the constitutional convention by the committee on public service corporations. The proposal empowers the legislature to establish a commission of three members, with six-year terms and salaries of $7,000 each. The commission would regulate the services of all public utilities and fix the rates to be charged. The only appeal from its decisions would be to the courts.

Considerable interest has been aroused over the probable effect the adoption of this plan would have upon the street railway situation in the city of Detroit, where the advocates of three-cent fares have been expecting that the expiration next year of a number of important street railway franchises would enable them to make three-cent fares a reality.

Fleet Officers Give Reception.

Rio Janeiro, Jan. 22.—The officers of the American battleship fleet stood out their series of receptions, banquets and other social functions tendered them by the government and the people of Rio Janeiro by giving a reception Tuesday evening aboard the battleship Minnesota. It was largely attended by the society people of the Brazilian capital, officers of the Brazilian army and navy, and the diplomatic corps.

Japs Arrested in Port Stevens.

Port Stevens, Ore., Jan. 22.—Two Japanese found loitering in the west battery of Port Stevens were arrested Tuesday. This place is rarely visited except by special permission from the district artillery commander. The men were interviewed by the district adjutant, Lieut. R. H. Kerfoot, who could obtain no satisfactory explanation for their trespassing.

Arrested Man Tries Suicide.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 22.—John M. Bachert, president of the Reliance Oil and Grease company, who was arrested a few days ago by the government authorities on the charge of using the mails to defraud, attempted to end his life Tuesday by swallowing morphine. It is said that his chances for recovery are meager.

Head of Closed Bank Arrested.

Grant, Ind., Jan. 22.—President W. Leo Buchenbach, of the suspended Bank of Ellettswood, at Ellettswood, Kan., was arrested Tuesday by order of Deputy Bank Examiner Watson on the charge of having sworn falsely on December 5, 1907, concerning the condition of the bank.

Pittsburg Coal Company Exonerated.

Greensburg, Pa., Jan. 22.—The verdict of the coroner's jury, which investigated the Durr mine explosion, was returned Tuesday night exonerating the Pittsburg coal company and attributing the explosion to the use of an open lamp.

Object to Co-Ed Debater.

New York, Jan. 22.—The Columbia college debating team Tuesday formulated a protest against the selection of Miss Elizabeth A. Cook, a co-ed of Cornell recently chosen as a member of the Cornell debating team, which is to meet Columbia in a debate at Ithaca on February 28. A letter requesting that Miss Cook be barred from the team was sent to Cornell.

Gets Fifteen Years for Murder.

Hellville, Ill., Jan. 22.—Found guilty of causing the death of two men by an infernal machine, one of them his cousin, a brother of the girl he wished to wed, Joseph Genetti, an Italian, was sentenced Tuesday night to 15 years in the penitentiary. On the stand Genetti said he had been ordered to marry his cousin by a "spirit woman." The brother opposed the match.

"I have no interest in any factional controversy and desire above all things that there shall be deliberate, honest expression of the party will and harmony of effort.

Will Do as Party Decides.

"I cannot fail to recognize the great honor which the nomination would confer or the obligation of service which it would impose. Nor should I care to be thought lacking in appreciation of the confidence and esteem which prompts the efforts of those who sincerely desire to bring it about. The matter is one for the party to decide and, whatever its decision, I shall be content.

"I shall be glad to meet with the members of the club as you suggest, and to make such further statement as may be appropriate. In view of the engagements already made I do not see how it will be possible to have such a meeting before the evening of January 31. And if that date suits your convenience arrangements for the meeting may be made accordingly."

MRS. GOULD ON STAGE AGAIN.

She Appears Before Members of New York Society.

New York, Jan. 22.—At a brilliant social function Mrs. George J. Gould Tuesday repeated her histrionic successes of years ago, when she appeared on an improvised stage in the ballroom of the Plaza hotel, assuming the leading role in a one-act play entitled "Mrs. Van Vechten's Divorce Dances." It was the feature of a tea given by Frederick Townsend Martin, a brother of Bradley Martin. The ballroom, which was thronged with members of New York society, had been gorgeously decorated and transformed into a miniature theater.

Federal Engineer Is Indicted.

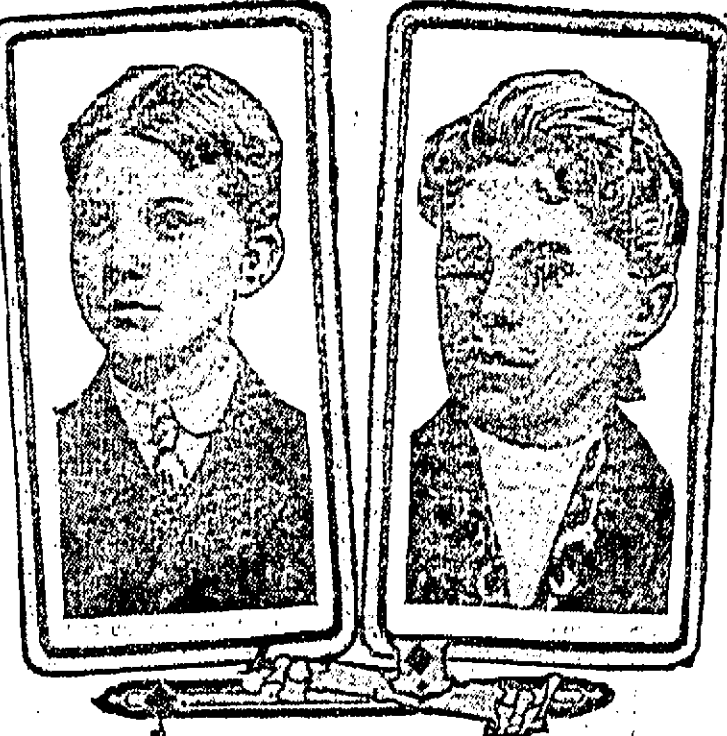

Parkersburg, W. Va., Jan. 22.—The United States court grand jury Tuesday indicted Capt. William M. Hall, United States engineer, charging him with violation of the federal eight-hour law. Capt. Hall is alleged to have allowed workmen to exceed eight hours a day while employed on government dams on the Ohio river between Wheeling and Parkersburg.

HARVEY HAZEL AND HIS MOTHER, WHOM HE KILLED.

Tolado, O., Jan. 22.—Harvey Hazel, the 17-year old boy who brutally murdered his mother, has broken down both in spirit and body, and the insolent air when first locked up had been transformed into that of a repentant, whimpering sinner. He now fully realizes that his life must pay the penalty, either by imprisonment or death.

Mrs. George L. Chambers of Aurora, Ill., his aunt, brought about the sudden change in young Hazel. Dressed in deep mourning, she visited him at the police station and before she left him he had broken down completely. When informed that his girl was ill and that her mother's life was in danger he exhibited more concern than he did over the crime he committed.

Last night after he had broken down and cried Hazel expressed a desire to see his mother, whom he declares he loved. Her face now began to haunt him.

"Why did you kill your mother?" was asked the boy. "You say that she was your best friend, and still you killed her."

"I don't know," he said. "Of course I felt bad when I couldn't get my girl friend a present for Christmas, and I've always wanted money but don't know why I killed her; she was my best friend."

Young Hazel was rather wayward and because of differences with his father had not been staying at home. His mother was refined, loving and thought the world of her son, meeting him secretly and aiding him when others would not. He is thought to have brooded over the fact that he was unable to buy his girl a present.

Knowing that his father had been paid, he called his mother on the phone early in the morning, requesting that she meet him down town. This she did, and returned home with her son. Being refused money he seems to have determined to get it at any cost.

After chatting pleasantly with his mother at the dinner table he was assisting her in the repairing of a screen with hammer and nails. While she was in a stooping position he crept behind her, panther like, and with a terrible swing of the arm in which he held a heavy hammer felled his mother to the ground. Fearing that he had not finished his work he again and again beat his mother's head with the awful weapon, crushing her head into a jelly.

Still mad with his murderous intent he seized a hatchet which he secretly tied about her throat to prevent the ringing of an alarm should she revive.

In his mad frenzied search for money he tore the clothing from his mother's person, and rushing upstairs took $57 from a dresser and then attempted to make the affair look like burglary by ransacking the place. He took several rings and his mother's jewelry which he later buried near the home of his sweetheart.

The boy's father has disowned him and refused to get an attorney for him, saying that he hoped never again to see the boy's face.

"Do with him what you will," said the father. "I want to forget. This is driving me crazy, not alone the fact that my wife is murdered, but that my boy has done it."

Mrs. Hazel, the victim of her own son's brutality, formerly lived in Battle Creek, Mich., and her son was a pupil in the public schools.

Mr. Hazel, the father was a Grand Trunk engineer, and, with Mrs. Hazel, figured prominently in railroad circles. Harvey was about 15 years old and sang in St. Thomas' Episcopal choir in Battle Creek.

It is probable the body of Mrs. Hazel will be taken to Battle Creek for interment.

Inconsistency.

During one of Lady Hattersen's addresses on prison life a lady in the audience mentioned that she had once lectured in Holloway. "What was the subject?" asked her ladyship. "I am afraid you will think it rather ironical," replied the lady, "but it was entitled 'Public Holidays, and How to Keep Them.'"

SAVED BY PET DOG.

Woman and Two Children Awakened in Burning House.

Lafayette, Pa., Jan. 22.—When the barking of a pet dog awoke Mrs. Mary Allison of Kingston, near here, early Tuesday she was almost suffocated by smoke, and flames were bursting through the walls of her room.

The dog had leaped upon the bed in which she and her two children were sleeping and with its teeth stripped the blankets and sheets from the bed before the woman was aroused. She seized a child in each arm and burst open a door leading down stairs. The three suffered severely from cold before reaching the nearest neighbors. It is suspected the fire was of incendiary origin.

Cambridge Springs, Pa., Jan. 22.—The annual midwinter outing of the Knights of Columbus of Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Cleveland, Elmira, Olean, Oil City and many other cities, which opened informally Monday night at Hotel Rider, was re-enforced Tuesday by the arrival of 150 more knights and their families. The day was spent in sight seeing and social diversions. At night a Paul Jones Leap Year dancing party was held.

"Fleetwood lifted his empty glass and gently shook the ice in it. 'That, and the other business—is enough to cut any man up, isn't it?'"

"You mean the action of the Lenox club?" asked Plank seriously.

"Yes, it's resigned from this club, too, I hear. Somebody told me that he has made a clean sweep of all his clubs. That's foolish. A man may be an ass to join to resign from any of 'em. You ask the weatherwise what resigning from a club forecasts. It's the first ominous sign in a young man's career."

Under cover of a rapid fire exchange of pleasantries between Fleetwood and O'Hara, Plank turned to Mortimer, hostling:

"I rather liked Steward when I met him at Shotover," he ventured. "I'm very sorry he's down and out."

"He drinks," shrugged Mortimer, "but his mineral water with Irish whiskey. 'He can't let it alone. He's like all the Stewards.'"

"Mortimer doesn't care for Steward, but he's an awfully good fellow, all the same," said Fleetwood, turning to Plank. "He's been an ass, but who hasn't? I like him tremendously, and I feel very bad over the mess he made of it after that crazy dinner I gave in my room. What? You hadn't heard of it? Why, man, it's the talk of the club."

"I suppose that is why I haven't heard," said Plank simply. "My club life is still in the future."

"Oh!" said Fleetwood, with an involuntary stare, surprised, a trifle uncomfortable, yet somehow liking Plank, and not understanding why.

Mortimer continued a desultory discussion with O'Hara concerning a very private dinner which somebody told somebody that somebody had given to Quarrier and the Intercounty Electric people, which, if true, plainly indicated who was financing the Intercounty scheme and why Amalgamated stock had tumbled again yesterday and what might be looked for from the Algonquin Trust company's president.

"Amalgamated Electric doesn't seem to like it a little bit," said O'Hara. "For all that, Helwether and Steward are in it up to their necks, and if Quarrier is really the god in the machine and if he really is doing stunts with Amalgamated Electric and is also making foot with the Intercounty crowd, why, he is virtually parading his own road, and why, in the name of common sense, is he doing that? He'll kill it, that's what he'll do."

"He can afford to kill it," observed Mortimer, punching the electric button and making a significant gesture toward his empty glass as the servant entered. "A man like Quarrier can afford to kill anything."

"Yes, but why kill Amalgamated Electric? Why not merge? Why, it's a crazy thing to do; it's a devil of a thing to do, to parallel your own line," insisted O'Hara. "That is dirty work. People don't do such things these days. Nobody tears up dollar bills for the pleasure of tearing."

"Nobody knows what Quarrier will do," muttered Mortimer, who had tried hard enough to find out when the first ominous rumors arose concerning Amalgamated, and the first fractional declines left the street speechless and stupefied.

O'Hara sat frowning and fidgeting his glass. "As a matter of fact," he said, "a little cold logic shows us that Quarrier isn't in it at all. No sane man would ruin his own enterprise when there is no need to. His people are openly supporting Amalgamated and hammering Intercounty, and, besides, there's Ferrall in it, and Mrs. Ferrall is Quarrier's cousin; and there's Helwether in it, and Quarrier is engaged to marry Sylvia Landis, who is Helwether's niece. It's a scrap with Intercounty's crowd, and the wheels inside of wheels are like Chinese boxes. Who knows what it means? Only this: that Amalgamated is safe, if Quarrier wants it to be. And unless he does he's crazy."

Mortimer, squinting sideways at Plank and seeing him still occupied with Fleetwood, turned bluntly on O'Hara:

"See here, what do you mean by being nasty to Plank?" he growled. "I'm backing him. Do you understand?"

"It is curious," mused O'Hara coolly, "how much of a cat a fairly decent man can be when he's out of temper."

"You mean Plank or me?" demanded Mortimer, darkening angrily.

"No, I mean myself. I'm not that way usually. I took him for a bounder just now after having accepted your hospitality at the Fells. I did mean to be offensive, and I'm sorry for that too. I hope you'll overlook it and be friendly."

Plank's face took on the dark red hue of embarrassment. He looked questioningly at Mortimer, whose visage remained noncommittal, then directly at O'Hara.

"I should be very glad to be friends with you," he said, with an ingenuous dignity that surprised Mortimer. It was only the native simplicity of the man, conceived and polished by constant contact with Mrs. Mortimer and now showing to advantage in the grain. And it gratified Mortimer, because he saw that it was going to make many matters much easier for himself and his protégé.

The tall glasses were filled and drained again before they departed to the cold plunge and dressing rooms above, whence presently they emerged in street garb to drive downtown and lunch together at the Lenox club. Plank as Fleetwood's guest.

Having O'Hara and Fleetwood to give him companionship, Mortimer managed to make Plank known personally to several governors of the club and to a dozen members, then left him to his fate, whence presently Fleetwood and O'Hara extracted him, fete at that moment being personified by a garrulous old gentleman, one Peter Calhoun, who divided with Major Helwether the distinction of being the club bore, and together they piloted him to the billiard room, where he beat them handily for a dollar a point at everything they suggested.

"You play almost as pretty a game as Stephen Steward used to play," said O'Hara cordially. "You're something of his own movement—something of his informal facility and touch. Haven't he, Fleetwood?"

"I wish Steward were back here," said Fleetwood thoughtfully, returning his cue to his own rack. "I wonder what he does with himself—where he keeps himself all the while? What the devil is there for a man to do if he doesn't do anything? He's not going out anywhere since his mother's death. He has no clubs to go to, I understand. What does he do—go to his office and come back and sit in that shabby old brick house all day and blink at the hum portraits of his hum and distinguished ancestors?"

"For awhile they talked of Steward and of his unfortunate story and the pity of it, and when the two men ceased:

"Do you know," said Plank mildly, "I don't believe he ever did it."

O'Hara looked up, surprised, then shrugged. "Unfortunately he doesn't deny it, you see."

"I heard," said Fleetwood, lighting a cigarette, "that he did deny it; that he said, no matter what his condition was, he couldn't have done it. If he had been sober the governors would have been bound to take his word of honor. But he couldn't give that, you see. And after they pointed out to him that he had been in no condition to know exactly what he did do, he shut up. And they dropped him, and he's falling yet."

"Lord! I wish Steward were back here. He was a good deal of a man, after all, Tom."

They were unconsciously using the past tense in discussing Steward, as though he were dead, either physically or socially.

"In one way he was always a singularly decent man," mused O'Hara.

"How exactly do you mean?"

"Oh, about women."

"I believe it too. If he did take that Vuyo girl into the Patrons it was his fault with her, and I believe his fault with any woman. He was absurdly decent that way. He was, indeed. And now look at the reputation he has. Isn't it funny? Isn't it now?"

"What sort of an effect do you suppose all this business is going to have on Steward?"

"It's had one effect already," replied Fleetwood. "Ferrall says he's going to the devil, but that's the sort of thing the major is likely to say. By the way, wouldn't there something between that pretty Landis girl and Steward? Somebody—some gossiping somebody—talked about it somewhere recently."

"I don't believe that, either," said Plank in his heavy, measured, passionless voice as they descended the steps of the white portico and looked around for a cab.

"As for me, I've got to hustle," observed O'Hara, glancing at his watch. "I'm due to shine at a function about 6. Are you coming uptown, either of you fellows? I'll give you a lift as far as Seventy-second street, Plank."

"Tell you what we'll do," said Fleetwood impulsively, turning to Plank. "We'll drive downtown, you and I, and we'll look up poor old Steward. Shall we? He's probably all alone in that God forsaken red brick family tomb. Shall we? How about it, Plank?"

O'Hara turned impatiently on his heel with a gesture of adieu, climbed into his electric hansom and went buzzing away up the avenue.

"I'd like to, but I don't think I know Mr. Steward well enough to do that," said Plank diffidently. He hesitated, coloring up. "He might misunderstand my going with you—as a liberty—which perhaps I might not have ventured on had he been less—less unfortunat—"

Again Fleetwood warmed toward the ruddy, ponderous young man beside him. "See here," he said, "you are going as a friend of mine if you care to look at it that way."

"Thank you," said Plank. "I should be very glad to go that way."

The Steward house was old only in the comparative Manhattan meaning of the word, for in New York nothing is really very old except the faces of the young men.

Decades ago it had been considered a big house, and it was still so spoken of—a solid, dingy, red brick structure, excellent in proportions, surmounted by heavy chimneys, the depth of its sunken windows hinting of the thickness of wall and foundation. Window curtains of obsolete pattern, all alike and all drawn, masked the blank panes. Three massive wisteria vines, the gnarled stems as thick as tree trunks, crawled upward to the roof, dividing the facade equally and furnishing some relief to its flatness, otherwise unbroken except by the deep recesses of window and door. Two huge and unsymmetrical cypress trees stood sentinels before it, dividing curb from asphalt, and from the centers of the shivered brown grass plots flanking the stoop under the basement windows two aged roses of Sharon trees bristled naked to the height of the white marble capitals of the flanking pillars supporting the stained portico.

"Nice old family mansion," commented Fleetwood, descending from the hansom, followed by Plank.

The door was opened by a very old man wearing the black swallowtail clothes and checker of an old-time butler, spotless, quite immaculate, but cut after a fashion no young man remembers.

"Good evening, Gumble," said Fleetwood, entering, followed on tiptoe by Plank.

"Good evening, sir." A pause and in the unsteady voice of age: "Mr. Fleetwood, sir. Mr. Plank. A bow and the dim eyes peering up at Plank, who stood fumbling for his cardcase.

Fleetwood dropped both cards on the salver unthinkingly extended. The butler ushered them into a dim room on the right.

"How is Mr. Steward?" asked Fleetwood, pausing on the threshold and dropping his card.

The old man hesitated, looking down, then still looking away from Fleetwood: "Bravely, sir; bravely, Mr. Fleetwood."

"The Stewards were always that," said the young man gently.

"Yes, sir. Thank you, Mr. Stephen. Mr. Steward," he corrected quickly, "is indisposed, sir. It was a—great shock to us all, sir. He bowed and turned away, holding his salver stiffly, and they heard him muttering under his breath: "Bravely, sir; bravely. A—great shock, sir. Thank you."

The butler returned presently, saying that Mr. Steward was at home and would receive them in the library above, as he was not yet able to pass up and down stairs.

Steward was sitting in an armchair by the window, one leg extended, his left foot, stiffly encased in bandages, resting on a footstool.

"Why, Stephen," exclaimed Fleetwood, hastening forward, "I didn't know you were laid up like this!"

Steward offered his hand imploringly; then his eyes turned toward Plank, who stood behind Fleetwood, and slowly disengaging his hand from Fleetwood's sympathetic grip, he offered it to Plank.

"It is very kind of you," he said. "Gumble, Mr. Fleetwood prefers to be for some inscrutable reason. Mr. Plank?" His smile was a question.

"If you don't mind," said Plank, "I should like to have some tea—that is, if."

"Ten, Gumble, for two. We'll tinkle in company, Mr. Plank," he added. "And the cigars are at your elbow, Billy," with another smile at Fleetwood.

"Now," said the latter after he had lighted his cigar, "what is the matter, Stephen?"

Steward glanced at his stiffly extended foot. "Nothing much," he reddened faintly. "I slipped. It's only a twisted ankle."

For a moment or two the answer satisfied Fleetwood; then a sudden, quick flash of suspicion came into his eyes. He glanced sharply at Steward, who lowered his eyes, while the red that in his hollow cheeks deepened.

Neither spoke for awhile. Plank slipped the tea which Wanda, the second man, brought. Steward brooded over his cup, head bent. Fleetwood made more noise than necessary with his ice.

"Why did you drop the Saddle club, Stephen?" asked Fleetwood.

"I'm not riding. I have no use for it," replied Steward.

"You're out on the Proscenium club, too, and the Owl's Head and the Trophy. It's a shame, Stephen."

"I'm tired of clubs."

"Don't talk that way."

MITCHELL REFUSES MONEY

MINERS' PRESIDENT DECLINES TO RECEIVE $2,700 GIFT.

Pathetic Scene in the Indianapolis Convention—Sum Will be Sent to Mrs. Mitchell.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 22.—Perhaps the most eloquent speech President John Mitchell of the United Mine Workers ever made in his life was Tuesday afternoon, when he declined to accept a personal gift of $2,700 tendered him by the miners of Montana and Wyoming as a token of their appreciation of his efforts to make their condition better.

As he spoke, trying to check his emotion, tears came to his eyes.

John Mitchell.

"Give it to Mrs. Mitchell and the children," he said, trembling with emotion. Big, hardy miners shed tears with him.

Thomas Gibson, president of the Montana miners, had come to the platform carrying a draft for $2,700. He said the draft was backed by a smaller amount which would bring the total up to $2,700.

The draft will be sent to Mrs. Mitchell.

Commission Plan is Rejected. Sioux City, Ia., Jan. 22.—With a total vote of 1,235, about half the voting strength of the town, Sioux City Tuesday defeated the commission plan of municipal government by a majority of 329. The retail business men made an organized campaign against the new system and the laboring element was largely opposed to it.

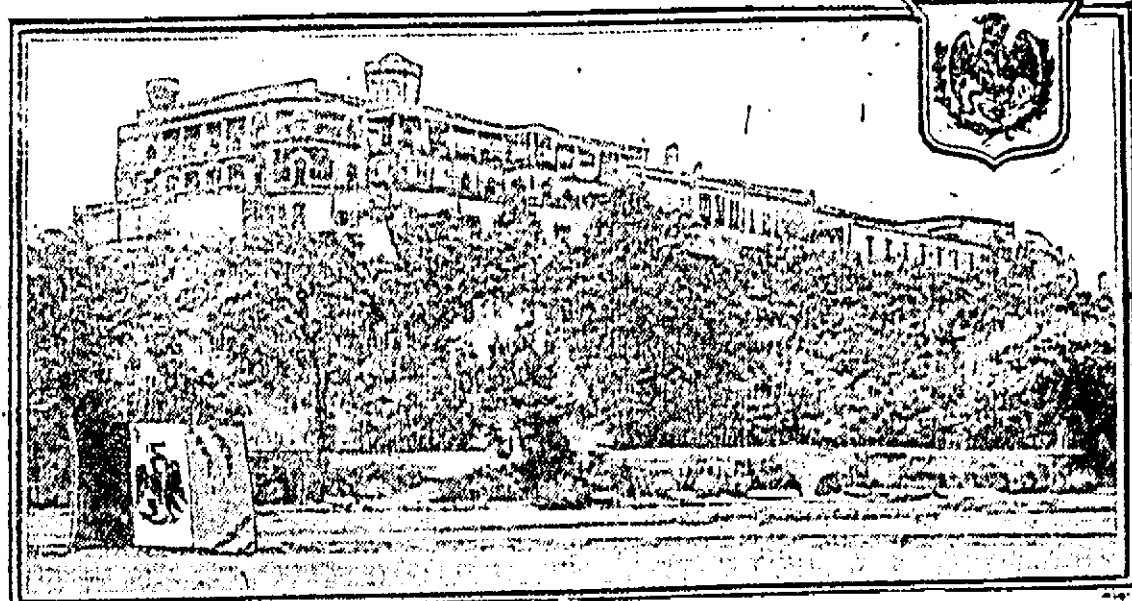

Many Japanese Returning Home. San Francisco, Jan. 22.—The Bulletin says that the number of Japanese returning home from this country is unusually large. On the Manchuria, which sailed for the Orient last week, were 30 Japanese; 100 more departed Tuesday on the Asia and already 150 have been booked to go on the Mongolia next week.

Betta Academy is Burned. Stamford, Conn., Jan. 22.—Betta academy, one of the oldest preparatory schools in the country, was destroyed by fire Wednesday morning. The loss amounts to between $100,000 and $150,000. The students all escaped.

Tennessee Town Has Had Fire. Knoxville, Tenn., Jan. 22.—Telephone advices from Clinton at one o'clock Wednesday morning said that fire had burned 24 stores, two hotels and four residences.

The Far Limit. The lawyer said sadly to his wife on his return home one night: "People seem very suspicious of me. You know old Jones? Well, I did some work for him last month, and when he asked me for the bill this morning, I told him out of friendship that I wouldn't charge him anything. He thanked me cordially, but said he'd like a receipt."

The White House of Mexico is of even greater historic interest than the White House of the United States. As the residence of Mexico's chief executive it also houses a president, who is universally beloved in his own country as the president of the United States is in his. President Diaz resides in the castle of Chapultepec, an extensive and lovely terrace paved with marble surrounds the edifice and from there the view over the valley two miles south of the city proper, with which it is connected by the famous boulevard Paseo. Great trees, chiefly cypresses, surround the Mexican White House, as they did the ancient palace of the Aztec Montezuma, which formerly stood triumphantly upon the brow of this same hill. The house of the national executive is situated in the castle of Chapultepec, an extensive and lovely terrace paved with marble surrounds the edifice and is one of the most magnificent in all the world. Within the building are great halls, staircases and galleries decorated with the most expensive and extravagant luxuries. The heights where the castle stands were the scene of a famous victory by the United States troops in 1847. The castle of Chapultepec, while infinitely connected with the story of Mexico, is also allied with the story of the United States.

How Many Bricks Have You Sent Away?

That sounds like a funny question, addressed to every citizen of this town and community, but it's really a serious one.

Listen: There is now just completed a magnificent building of red brick exterior and concrete interior right in the business heart of one of the biggest of American cities. It occupies a whole block and calls itself in a large lettered sign "The Largest Monolithic Building in the World." It has many floors, with about a hundred acres of floor space. The entrances are of solid marble. The floors are beautifully tiled.

Altogether it is a credit to the big city in which it stands. Oh, it's a Jim Dandy!

Now, how many bricks have you sent to the city to go into this big building? Honest, how many?

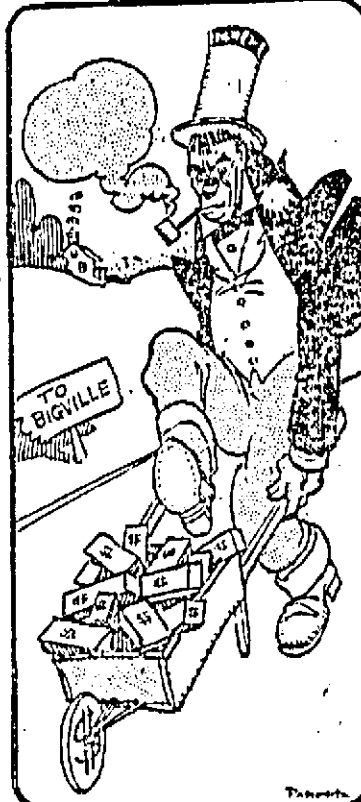

Of the hundreds of thousands of bricks put into the walls of this building the city where it stands has contributed not a single red brick. Country people, the people of small towns and cities far away from the big metropolis, have sent in the bricks for the construction of this splendid edifice.

You may have sent in a few loads of bricks yourself without knowing it.

Listen: This magnificent structure, which ornaments a city you probably never will see yourself, is built of bricks bought with the dollars of people living in towns just like ours—towns that would like to have some new brick buildings themselves now and then. Every dollar contributed to the city building fund means a new, hefty load of bricks for this big, beautiful skyscraper, "largest in the world" of its kind. This building was put up, through the kind donations of their unknown country cousins, by a firm that ran a small store in that city a few years ago.

But this firm conceived the cute idea of having thousands of strangers contribute bricks to build its fine, large, new store.

And the building is a Mail Order Store. See?

GOOD BLOOD

NATURE'S PROTECTION AGAINST DISEASE

The preservation of health and prevention against disease is almost entirely dependent upon pure, healthy blood; every organ, tissue, nerve and sinew of the body draws on this vital fluid for nourishment and strength. Poisons, humors and germs from various sources often get into the blood, and then this great life-stream becomes a source of infection and disease, instead of a nourishing, health-sustaining fluid. Heredity is likewise an important factor, regulating the quality of the blood. Some persons are born with tainted blood from diseased ancestry, and Scrofula in one of its numerous forms is sure to crop out some time in life. Not only poisons in the blood are responsible for disease, but when the circulation is run down and becomes poor and weak in quality, then we see the effect in a general bad condition of health, such as weakness, sallow complexions, boils, and various skin eruptions. All blood troubles require a tonic and blood purifier, and none other equals S. S. S. It goes down to the very foundation of the trouble, and removes every particle of the poison or impurity from the blood. And not only does S. S. S. antidote the poisons, humors and germs, but it possesses health-giving, tonic properties, which build up and strengthen weak, impoverished blood, and fortifies the system against

T. J. ZIEGLER CLOTHING CO.

E. J. SMITH, Manager.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 22.—Frank A. Heiber of this city is responsible for giving to the penitentiary republican presidential campaign a most picturesque bit of human interest and humor. He is the organizer of the Fairbanks Tall Men's club of Chicago, an organization which has already been made the subject of cartoons from Maine to Oregon and which promises to be one of the most picturesque features of the Chicago convention, which is to name a republican nominee for president of the United States. The idea of the Fairbanks Tall Men's club originated with Mr. Heiber. It has already been put into effect with a creditable enrollment of members in Chicago and elsewhere are being organized in all parts of the country. Mr. Heiber is 6 feet 4 inches high, the same height as Vice-President Fairbanks. Any man who can muster six feet is eligible for membership and invited to join. The members will wear the Fairbanks style of silk hat and frock coat, and during convention week in Chicago 1000 of these excellent specimens of American manhood will drill and perform their evolutions to the delight of the populace and to the prestige of Fairbanks.

JOHN HINKSON EDWARDS. There is no more striking example in the United States treasury of the successful young man than John Hinkson Edwards, assistant secretary of the United States treasury. But little past 30 years of age, Mr. Edwards holds one of the most responsible positions in governmental Washington. Like many another successful pupil which the treasury department has produced, Mr. Edwards began his career as a stenographer. He came to the national capital as the private secretary of Senator Anthony of Washington, after long service in the newspaper business. His first promotion came as private secretary to the secretary of the treasury, Mr. Shaw. Edwards went to Shaw on the recommendation of the late Postmaster General Payne. Payne thought so much of Edwards that he refused to let him go at once, but Shaw "borrowed" him and kept him until after Payne's death.

Real Fountain of Youth.

The Nevis is a small British island near St. Kitts, as round as your hat and consisting of one lofty mountain peak and a lovely shell road, some celebrated ruins and the finest natural springs—red, hot, rotten-smelling sulphur water being brought from the mountain top in a stone conduit. A few baths in this water, at 103 or 104 degrees will renew your youthful vigor.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 22.—Shaw, January 1 fifteen life insurance companies, with offices in different states, which have formerly done business in Wisconsin, have left the state because of the stringent insurance legislation passed last winter under the direction of Speaker Herman L. Elbern of the assembly. He was a member of the insurance investigating committee of the state, and when the legislature convened presented a long list of bills compelling stringent accounting, limiting expense loading, prohibiting a company from both a participating and non-participating business and imposing a penalty of from $1000 to $5000 for violations. The measures passed. Although the penalty law is an exact copy of the one recommended by the Armstrong committee and passed by the New York legislature, the companies leaving the state claim that this is the most objectionable feature of the legislation.
